

The world and governments now realize that without the involvement of every citizen and patient, the fight against AMR will be a very long and hard one and will be like rowing the river upstream.

The need for every citizen and every patient to be involved is more and more visible, and together with ACN, ALCER and other organisations we are looking forward to hearing patients' voice and ideas on how to help our generation but also our children and future patients through preserving antibiotics for as long as possible. At AMR Patient Alliance we believe that even though we may not be fit to invent new antibiotics, we are certainly skilled to invent and propose innovative ideas on how to make a difference in the fight against AMR.

Dr Neda Milevska Kostova

Chair, International Alliance of Patients Organisations

President, IAPO Patients for Patient Safety Observatory & AMR Patient Alliance